The applied project works on your business, not a case study.

The Executive MBA runs for three months — six facilitated training days across three weekend sessions, coaching in between, and no time out of the business.

What makes it an employer's programme is the capstone: every participant builds and defends a transformation plan for a live issue in your organisation.

What your organisation receives

A manager trained in a repeatable decision method (F.A.S.T.) across twelve applied modules — strategy, execution, change, systems and stakeholders.

An applied project on a real company challenge, reviewed by faculty — work your business keeps.

A participant who never leaves the job: one weekend a month, three months, done.

What your manager receives

The CMI-recognised Executive MBA programme certificate, awarded on completion of the programme requirements.

A personal leadership diagnostic, one-to-one coaching and a peer cohort of Malaysian working leaders.

Said plainly: a professional development programme — not an MQA-accredited academic degree or a regulated qualification.

One manager or a team

Individual sponsorship into a public cohort (English or Mandarin) — or an in-house Managers Development Programme for a management team, scheduled with your organisation. Cohorts run through the year; the website carries the live calendar.

Proof, not promises

154 graduates across 17 cohorts (16 English, 1 Mandarin), with the programme's inaugural graduation held in August 2026. The programme does not guarantee any business result, promotion or salary outcome — the work does the talking.

The HRD Corp process, step by step.

Employer funding may be available to eligible HRD Corp-registered employers, subject to HRD Corp approval and the approved amount. The application is employer-led — your company applies, and the programme team supplies every supporting document.

Step 1

Confirm registration and levy

Your company must be HRD Corp-registered with available levy. A founder or owner may be included where the company confirms the participant is on its payroll.

Step 2

PREPARE

Request the document pack

The programme team supplies the quotation, schedule, course content and trainer documents your application requires.

Step 3

APPLY

Submit the grant application — before training begins

The employer submits the application ahead of the chosen cohort's first session. HRD Corp decides eligibility and the approved amount; approval is never automatic and is not decided by the programme team.

Step 4

CLAIM

Complete training, then claim

After the approved training is completed, the training provider and employer submit their respective claim documents within HRD Corp's stated deadline.

The condition that matters most: the grant application must be submitted before training starts. If you are planning around a specific cohort, begin the application conversation early — the programme team will map the document timeline against your chosen dates.

One published fee. One conversation to start.
